Cryptocurrency is a digital or virtual currency secured by cryptography, which makes it nearly impossible to counterfeit or double-spend. Many cryptocurrencies are decentralized networks based on blockchain technology, a distributed ledger enforced by a disparate network of computers. A defining feature of cryptocurrencies is that they are generally not issued by any central authority, rendering them theoretically immune to government interference or manipulation. Cryptocurrencies can be classified as (traded) assets, means of exchange, and means of storage. These features make them traded on exchanges. In our crypto portfolios, we select coins with high prospects using fundamental and technical analysis to determine which coins will thrive and include them in our mining stations.
